

Funny Street

Chapter 1: Ron's Radio

"Hay better I mean butter I mean betty" said Nanny Granny. "YAWN drip drip" went Sweaty Betty. "oohh I must stop sweating so much!"

"Hay Nanny why don't you come into my house for some tea?" said Sweaty Betty. "Sure" said Nanny Granny. "Come on" sweated Sweaty Betty. "Take a seat".

Nanny Granny sat down. "I have cakes!" said Sweaty Betty producing a batch of cakes all soggy with sweat. "Really, I couldn't, I must have tea I am on a healthy diet" said Nanny Granny. "Just tea for me". "OK" said Sweaty Betty giving Nanny Granny a cup full of a brownish waterish looking drink. Nanny Granny pretended to look at her watch. "Oh, I must be going now, sorry Betty now time to try the tea" said Nanny Granny dashing through Betty's wet corridor and out the door. Back at her house Nanny Granny got out her knitting needles and continued her coat she was making for the winter. Next door Ron the Pig was screwing together some Ikea wood boards making a new mud bath that would last him years since he wouldn't have to keep it outside, instead he'd just unscrew it at winter and build it again when it was spring. "BANG BANG BANG TAP TAP TAP" went Ron's hammer "OOOOH I'M FARTIN' OOOOOH YEAH I'M POOIN'!" blared Ron's radio. "WOULDYA KEEP IT DOWN!!!"

screamed Sweaty Betty and Nanny Granny. Ron the Pig went to bed. Ron had left his radio outside but he turned it off, but he probably should have taken it inside because at midnight a bird pooped right on the switch, and it switched on the radio. "OOOOOOOH I'M ON THE LOO OOOOH IM DOIN' A POO" blared Ron's radio. "WE'RE TRYING TO SLEEP" screamed Sweaty Betty and Nanny Granny. Ron turned off the radio. At morning, Ron went back to work hammering on his new mud bath. Nanny Granny went back to her knitting. Sweaty Betty started cooking some cakes.

What happens next? Find out in next week's magazine!